Our Process

For the assembly we use our own extrusions direct from the mill. On arrival the aluminium goes through a 7-stage dipping process to clean, etch and polymer seal the extrusions both inside and out. This gives protection against the elements and forms the base for the perfect powder coating process.

Once coated a selection of the extrusions then go on to be wood grained using the sublimation process. This produces up to colour 30 variations which also get the 15-year guarantee.

The advantages of this process are the exceptional strength of the finished gate and the ability to coat the product fully inside and out which gives a superior and more durable paint finish over other processes.

Automation

An automated gate makes your life more comfortable, easy and beautiful.

Forget the inconvenience of having to open and close your gate manually; with one simple movement you can operate it from the comfort of your home or car.

Make a style choice, for you and your property.

After this the extrusions are then dried and sent through our powder coating nozzles, once coated the extrusions then pass through our 24m oven to achieve the finish that is guaranteed to keep colour to within 2 pan-tones over 15 years for all architectural finishes.

The next stage is to assemble the gates using a screw and cold-weld polyurethane adhesive process like that of the prestige car market. The automation strengthening and corners are all reinforced and bonded at the same time.

Enhanced Security

The biggest reason and benefit for having electric gates is to achieve better security at your property or premises. Households can rest assured their possessions will remain protected, while businesses don't have to worry about expensive assets being stolen. Electric gates not only make it harder for individuals to access your property or premises, they also act as a deterrent.
